

MEXICO IS CALM SAYS GOVERNMENT

Calles Refuses Catholic Proposal of a Truce

Mexico City, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The proposal of the Catholic Archbishop for a truce in the religious situation has been declined by President Calles, but peace maneuvers continued behind the scenes. Considerable hope exists that they will result in some progress toward ending the deadlock now existing between the government and the Catholic Church in Mexico.

In rejecting the proposal of the Archbishop, President Calles, said the "federal government will only limit itself to act with the required energy to enforce the laws of this country."

Obregon Balks Calles
Added strength to the hand of President Calles in enforcing the new religious regulation was seen in the statement given to the Associated Press in Nogales, Ariz., by former President Obregon, a potential presidential candidate in the 1928 election declared it was evident that the dignitaries of the Catholic Church had provoked conflict when "through the mouth of their most exalted representative, Senor Mora y del Rio, Archbishop of Mexico, the first declaration of war was made public with an evident rebellious spirit against the fundamental laws in force."

U. S. In Protest
What is considered a virtual protest by U. S. Consul General Weddell has been deposited with the department of state. It concerns the taking over by the Mexican government of the Episcopal church of San Jose de Gracia and it is asserted that the Mexican Episcopal clergymen in charge failed to register as required by the Mexican government, and as soon as this technicality is overcome the church will be returned to his charge.

Committees Taking Charge
The transfer of Catholic churches into the hands of municipally appointed committees who will have charge of them during the absence of priests, continued quietly yesterday and today. The work is expected to be completed within a few days.

In cases where delay has occurred in turning over churches it has been due to the work of checking up inventories of church property. When this checking up is completed, the doors of churches will be open and worshippers will be free to enter and pray when they so desire.

Excitement Subsiding
With a few scattered exceptions, the people continue to accept the situation without trouble. The department of the interior reports excitement is subsiding in most places, leading the government to believe that the conditions for real order have been passed. The government reports assert that in many places the Catholic authorities themselves deserve credit for the maintenance of order.

Propaganda Battles Goes On
The propaganda battle continues however, many leaflets issued by both sides to the controversy are daily appearing and speakers of the Confederation of Labor are touring the country addressing the people. The Catholic case also is being presented but not at all in the press because editors are fearful that they may be charged with violations of the religious law.

Mexican Asks Sheriff for Ride; Is in Jail

Enoch Flores, a Mexican truck laborer, employed at Nelson, was fined $100 and costs by Judge William L. Leach in the county court this morning on a charge of possessing and transporting intoxicating liquor. Flores stopped Sheriff Risley Saturday evening in the west end of the city and asked the official for a ride. He was intoxicated at the time, it was said, and experienced difficulty in staying on the walk. The sheriff accommodated the stranger and at the county jail, he was found to be carrying two pints of moonshine liquor. In default of the fine, he was sent to the county jail.

Lee County Maps Will Be Used in Schools

County Superintendent L. W. Miller has had 2,000 copies of the new Lee county map, which was recently completed by County Superintendent of Highways Fred Leake, printed, for distribution in the schools of the county. School children will be given an opportunity of learning something of the location of gravel pits and the county road system. The maps will also be furnished gratis to anyone who make application at the county superintendent of schools office.

INSTALLING TRAFFIC SIGNALS
Contractor William J. Cahill this morning was erecting the new electrically operated traffic signals on Galena avenue at the intersection of First and Second streets. The signals have been delayed in arrival and will not be in operation before the latter part of the week.

AMERICAN GIRL WAS CLOSE TO CHANNEL GOAL

Shifting Tides and Fog Defeated Her Splendid Effort

Dover, England, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Miss Clarabelle Barrett of New Rochelle, N. Y., failed in her attempt to swim the English Channel. She got within two miles of Cape Gris Nez, France, when she had to be taken from the water. She was in an exhausted condition after being in the water 21 hours and 35 minutes.

Shortly after being taken into the conveying launch, Miss Barrett said: "I am very sorry I have failed like this."

During the swim Miss Barrett covered between thirty and forty miles carried hither and thither by the swift tides. She was beaten not so much by the current as by fog which persisted from 10 o'clock last night and which caused the pilot to lose his way.

During the swim Miss Barrett ate a good deal of fruit and every half hour she drank plentifully of hot tea. Walter Brickett, trainer of Miss Barrett, said she probably would not attempt to swim the channel again this year but she certainly would attempt it in 1927.

NAMING SUCCESSOR TO CUMMINS MAKES TROUBLE IN IOWA

Old Division Lines Reappear in G. O. P. Ranks There

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 3.—(AP)—The task of selecting a candidate to complete the term of the late Albert B. Cummins expiring next March, today apparently has re-marked the line of division in the republican ranks, which to all appearance was erased or at least concealed at the state convention here two weeks ago.

Although numerous leaders have been mentioned as likely republican candidates to succeed Senator Cummins, formal steps have been taken by only two groups, the "regulars" or followers of Cummins and friends of Col. Smith W. Brookhart who defeated Cummins for renomination in the G. O. P. convention Friday.

A second republican convention will be held here Friday to nominate the party candidate for the short term but the date of the democratic meeting will not be determined until the central committee meets Thursday. Little interest attaches to the democratic meeting, however, as leaders virtually conceded that Claude R. Porter, nominee for the long term, will be choice for the short term.

Nomination by the republicans of any one but a Cummins man "would be treason to the memory" of the dead senator, E. J. Kelly, Cummins' campaign manager declared in a statement while Frank J. Lund of Webster City, Brookhart manager, asserted the Colonel "owes it to Iowa voters to be ready to assume his duties."

Funeral of Mrs. Wilkins Wednesday

The funeral of Mrs. Osmer Wilkins, who met a tragic death Sunday afternoon east of the city on the Daysville road when she was thrown from an automobile in a collision of two cars, will be held Wednesday afternoon. Services will be conducted from the Staples-Meyer chapel at 2 o'clock, Rev. Albert W. Carlson, pastor of the Methodist church officiating. Interment will be in Oakwood cemetery. The obituary will be published later. The Women's Relief Corps of which Mrs. Wilkins was an active member, will have charge of the services at the grave.

THOMSON ON STAND TODAY IN FUND QUIZ

Says Crowe-Barrett Promised to Support Him For Mayor

Chicago, Aug. 3.—(AP)—L. E. Fisher, an officer of the Illinois Traction Company, handled the money for Senator William B. McKinley's campaign in East St. Louis during the recent U. S. Deputy Marshal in that city testified today before the senate campaign funds committee.

Shepherd said he and Walter Wicks were given $2,500 for organization and general campaign work in 21 precincts of the city and some precincts in the county while L. E. Crump had charge in the other forty precincts of the city.

The deputy marshal could not say how much money Fisher had for the campaign nor from what source it came.

"Is the Illinois Traction Company an Insull or Studebaker corporation," Senator Reed asked.

"It is a Studebaker corporation," Shepherd said he gave $200 to Bert Washington, mayor of Brooklyn, Ill., for campaign work.

He Certainly Delivered.
"Did he deliver?" Reed asked.
"Yes sir," the witness replied.
"Out of 656 votes cast, McKinley got 650."

"You don't think there was any corruption in the count that you lost 6 votes or was it an accident?"

"There was no corruption so far as I was concerned."

After less than half an hour on the stand Shepherd was permitted to return home. He was called out of order because of illness, and because he had come to Chicago against the advice of his physician.

Did Not Recall Insull.
The recalling of Samuel Insull, Chicago public utilities executive, again was deferred. He may take the stand tomorrow.

William Hale Thompson, former mayor of Chicago was the second witness of the day. He came all the way from California to give his testimony. It is on record that Allen F. Moore, Smith's campaign manager, gave Thompson $25,000 and he in turn gave it to the Crowe-Barrett republican faction in Cook county.

Promised Thompson Support.
Thompson said he supported Smith because of his opposition to the world court and that he helped Smith all he could. He disclosed that the Crowe-Barrett leaders had promised to support him for mayor if he helped them in the recent primary.

Thompson said the lakes to the Gulf waterway was supported by the Crowe-Barrett group and that also the wet and dry issue for Cook county came up and it was decided to declare against prohibition for that county.

"With these understandings our minds met," Thompson said. "This had much to do with assisting in the nomination of Col. Frank L. Smith."

Asked about campaign finances Thompson said "this campaign was no different from any other, we were short of money and always needed a little more."

"I don't know how the money was raised, except that I encouraged my friends to contribute. I asked Allen F. Moore, Col. Smith's campaign manager, if there was any way to secure funds. He said he would try to raise some."

COURT DECISION AID GOVERNMENT IN RUM BATTLE

Uphold Seizure of Rum Boat 35 Miles Out At Sea

Washington, Aug. 3.—(AP)—A recent court of appeals ruling upholding the seizure of an alleged American rum runner outside the three mile limit was described in a department of justice statement today as "a noteworthy decision, having an important bearing on the efforts of the federal government to enforce the prohibition law and stamp out rum running."

The decision was rendered in an appeal from the district court in Connecticut, and involved seizure of the vessel Underwriter, flying the American flag 35 miles off Block Island.

The court's ruling was based on anti-smuggling and shipping laws, and not on the prohibition law. The supreme court has held that the dry law itself is not applicable to American ships on the high seas although all shipping board vessels are prohibited from selling intoxicants under a policy laid down by the board.

Trip to Alaska Is Enjoyed by Dixon Couple Just Home

Judge Harry Edwards who returned home Saturday evening from a 32-day trip to Alaska, states that this particular part of the United States at this time of the year is thronged with tourists. Alaska, which has recently come into prominence as a tourists playground, affords good accommodations for the visitors, but these are not sufficient to accommodate the throngs who are making this trip.

Judge Edwards stated, Judge and Mrs. Edwards left Vancouver, B. C., by steamship and were on the Pacific ocean a total of nine days; the trip from that point to Skagway requiring about four and one-half days. In this time the steamer is seldom out of sight of land.

Concerning the weather conditions in Alaska, Judge Edwards stated that there was little difference between that in the northland and in Dixon. The day-light hours are much longer than in this section of the country and one can read at 11 o'clock at night without artificial light.

The judge and wife passed over the mountain region and made a trip through the famous Klondike country, visiting many of the big copper and gold mining claims.

GENERAL MOTORS AGAIN LEADS TO STOCK INCREASES

Cochran's Interview Inspires Hectic Trading in N. Y.

New York, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Another wild buying demonstration in stock of the General Motors Corporation resulting from the bullish interview credited to Thomas Cochran, a partner of J. P. Morgan & Co., as he sailed for Europe last Saturday, marked today's hectic trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Speculative enthusiasm quickly spread to other sections of the list. U. S. Steel crossed 150 to a new high record and scores of other issues rallied 1 to 8 points.

The frantic scramble to buy General Motors which developed yesterday upon the publication of the Cochran statement, was renewed at the outset of trading and more than 200,000 shares of General Motors changed hands in the first few hours.

Meanwhile Mr. Cochran, speeding toward Europe on the Olympic, was bombarded with radio messages asking for an explanation of his unusual statement. No replies had been received by early afternoon and the Morgan offices remained silent regarding the interview.

RISE STARTED EARLY

New York, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Common stock of the General Motors Corporation continued its sensational advance today opening 4 points higher at 205 and quickly running up to a new record peak at 208 1/2. The first sale was a block of 5,000 shares at 205 followed by a string of transactions totalling 43,000 shares.

Gen. Robert Evans, Veteran U. S. Fighter Is Dead in Europe

Florence, Italy, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Brig. Gen. Robert N. Evans, 74, U. S. A. retired, is dead at Camaldoli. The body will be taken to Rome, where he had lived for a number of years.

SCOUTS ENCAMPED NEAR DIXON LIKE TODAY'S WEATHER

Boys Are Digging Themselves Out of the Mud Today

The clearing of the skies last evening brought joy to the hearts of the members of Boy Scout troops who are enjoying their summer camping period. Since Thursday of last week, the Scouts have encountered untold difficulties. Washouts have been a several-times-daily occurrence, but the sunshine of this morning, saw a general "airing out" of all camp equipment. The camp correspondent writes the following:

Rain, rain, rain. Everything is wet but our spirits. We are looking forward to good weather, which we soon hope will arrive. We had Sunday school this morning. Three old friends of Scout Executive Don Cameron came down from Kenosha, Ben Zeff, Wally Getchman and Fred Hapf. Ben sang a few songs and cheered us up. The trio were all welcomed as guests of the camp. Many Sunday visitors were with us despite the wet weather and bad roads.

The camp turned out to erect a totem pole at the camp fire circle and what a hideous monster it was. The woodcraft circle is now being completed, each tent has made at least ten fires and a lean-to or a bridge.

Fred Harris thought he was mixing drinks at the Chocolate Shoppe in Rochelle but as a result his shoes have too much chocolate mud on them.

Dr. Price and Mrs. White of Mt. Morris treated the boys of the camp to candy and gum.

Don't forget Thursday is to be visitors day at the camp and all of the tents have been informed to have some kind of a stunt ready at camp fire. Come early and stay late.

The camp goat Norman Tilton was given a late mud bath. He seemed to like it.

Ray King fell into the swimming hole while getting gravel for headquarters tent.

Tent No. 3 had a party Monday evening. Nobody turned out sick but J. Kline did not eat any breakfast.

Bob Sworn found salt in the sugar bowl, so he is drinking water pretty heavily.

Dead Seafarers from Oregon, a new arrival, made a dive for his cot early Monday morning and as a result of poor aim, hit the ditch in a resounding splash.

All of the tents have started to dig out of the mud that settled during the recent protracted rain storm.

Negro's Sweetheart Turns Him Over to Police for Murder

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 3.—(AP)—A sweetheart of Giles Carter, negro, 55, wanted here for a murder 18 years ago, is believed by Peoria police to have turned him in to the police in Milwaukee Sunday. At the time Carter, who is accused of killing John Kreps, proprietor of a saloon here, escaped, close watch was kept on the home of Carter's sweetheart, a white woman. She disappeared about a year later and nothing was ever heard from her. Milwaukee police say a white woman supplied information which led to Carter's arrest and subsequent confession.

Gardners Purchase Dixon Machine Shop

Oscar and David Gardner have purchased the interests of Messrs. Villiger and Wirth, known as the Dixon Machine Works, located back of the Nachusa Tavern and have taken immediate possession. Both young men have had several years of practical experience in their profession and are prepared to take care of their patrons wants in the way of machine and auto repair work. Oscar Gardner spent five years in the Dodge Brothers automobile factory and his brother David Gardner spent eight years in the tool making department at the Lawrence Brothers factory at Sterling.

Veterans To Hold Big Meet Wednesday

The members of Horace F. Ott post, No. 540 V. F. W. and the Auxiliary are requested to be at their regular meeting Wednesday, Aug. 4, at Union hall to meet State Commander A. G. Greenfield, Senior Vice Commander, Fred Allis, State Adjutant, L. G. Holmes and State Quartermaster A. R. Henderson. At this meeting a class of recruits will be taken into the post, after which the Auxiliary will service cream and cake, and the refreshments to be followed by a social and a post dance.

WOULD DESTROY WEEDS ON LEE COUNTY ROADS

Supt. Leake Asks Co-operation From Land-owners in County

County Superintendent of Highways Fred W. Leake today sent out a communication to land owners adjoining township roads in Lee county, seeking the individual aid of every farmer in the cutting of weeds along the system of county roads and enclosing a brief questionnaire. During his few weeks in the office, Superintendent Leake has not only brought about a reorganization of the county patrol system with the assistance and co-operation of the commissioners of highways and patrolmen to the cutting of weeds.

The communication which he has prepared is as follows:

About a month ago I notified the Commissioners of Highways as well as the patrolmen patrolling County roads throughout Lee County, of the necessity, according to law, of destroying the weeds and brush along the highways. In some instances, particularly under County control, the same has had attention at this time and several of the Highway Commissioners of the different Townships have been in my office in regard to this matter.

Some Townships at an election have voted that the adjacent landowner take charge of the weeds bordering on the Township Highways.

The Commissioner who wants to destroy the weeds along the public highways feel that we should give the land owners a chance to take care of the same, so that the money levied for road purposes will not be spent along these lines.

Representing the County as County Superintendent of Highways at this time, I would like to ask the land owners a few questions.

Do you feel that the money expended in destroying the weeds of your township is well expended?

Do you feel that your neighbor should destroy his weeds along the public highways and let yours grow?

Do you feel that your Commissioner will be justified in asking to levy more tax money for the destruction of weeds along the highways, when you pay your taxes?

Railroads to Protest 6 Cent Grain Rate Cut

Chicago, Aug. 3.—(AP)—All railroads in the territory east of the Mississippi river and north of the Ohio river will protest the six cent grain rate reduction to the eastern seaboard recently announced by the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railway. This decision was reached today at a meeting of rate representatives of the carriers.

The decision includes all of the eastern trunk lines of the official classification territory and means that all of the carriers will act as a unit in opposing the reductions proposed by both the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railway, and the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie railway.

The latter road, the Soo Line, made its announced tariff effective only to certain New England points, while the Minneapolis and St. Louis line would reduce its rate to all eastern points.

GROCERY BLOWN TO ATOMS BY A MYSTERY BLAST

Carlinville, Ill., Aug. 3.—(AP)—An explosion in the Caccio-Scarpato wholesale grocery at 230 o'clock this morning blew the building to atoms causing damage estimated at $40,000. Pieces of the tile building were scattered for a block in every direction. So far as is known, there was no one in the building at the time of the explosion.

The continual explosion of fruit cans this morning gave the impression that a gun battle was in progress. About $31,900 insurance is carried on the building.

Tokio Frightened by Severe Earthquake

Tokio, Aug. 3.—(AP)—An unusually severe earthquake shook the city at 6:25 p. m. The populace was badly frightened and everyone indoors ran into the streets. Thus far no damage has been reported.

Coolidge Hopes For Success of Geneva Arms Conference

Paul Smith's, N. Y., Aug. 3.—(AP)—President Coolidge was said today to be desirous of doing all possible to assure the success of the Geneva conference on arms limitation.

Asserting that his position was unchanged in favoring arms reductions, officials said he would consider unfortunate any action that might be taken now looking toward any other limitation conference which might become a detriment to the success of the Geneva conference.

KIDNAPPER OF INSANE GIRL WAS CAPTURED

Ex-Convict and 16-Year-Old Girl in County Jail

Quincy, Ill., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Headed westward in a dilapidated automobile purchased especially to carry off Heulah Kitchen, 16 year old patient, whom he took from the Jacksonville State Hospital for the Insane Monday morning, David Cooper, 32, got as far as Marble Head, nine miles from here, before his flight was halted.

Two constables took Cooper and the girl in custody as they rattled in to town last night and brought them to the county jail here.

Once a patient at the hospital, Cooper announced at the restaurant where he was employed that he was going to get the girl, take her to Peoria, his home, marry her and motor to Oklahoma.

It was not determined whether he forced the girl to accompany him or she went voluntarily. She had twice escaped from other state institutions.

Officials here know Cooper as an ex-convict who was sent to Jacksonville hospital after he attempted to commit suicide about a year ago. Miss Kitchen's home is in Mount Sterling, Illinois.

POLICE OF NATION CHECK WHOLESALE CRIME CONFESSION

Little Progress Made On Claim of Fourteen Murders

Seattle, Aug. 3.—(AP)—Police have made little progress in attempts to verify the story of Thomas Johnson, alias Kelley, alias Smith, who Saturday surrendered to authorities and confessed to 14 murders and scores of robberies.

Johnson who claims to have escaped from a Missouri asylum after being transferred from the penitentiary, continues to give details of crimes he says he committed in many sections of the country. His claim that he escaped from the asylum where he was listed under the name of Thomas Kelley, corresponds to asylum records which show that a man using that name escaped two years ago.

Says He Hid Body.
Told that police at Mankato, Minn., could find nothing to prove his story that he killed his partner there Johnson said he sank the body in the river back of an ice house.

Two Minneapolis detectives are endeavoring to get Johnson who included in his list of crimes the murder of Leonard Erdahl of that city last December.

MIGHT BE OUR SLAYER

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 3.—(AP)—Police here were interested in the possibility that the mystery of the slaying of Clarence Orr, Canadian war veteran may be solved by the confession of Thomas Johnson in Seattle, Orr, who once lived in Seattle was shot and killed here on the night of June 3, 1925. It appeared that Orr and a companion hired a taxi. During the trip one of the men stuck a gun into the driver's side. Spying a policeman the driver, Floyd Lucas, slowed down his machine and called to the officer. Just then he was shot. Officers later found Orr lying under an automobile a few blocks away with a bullet hole in his temple and a revolver clutched in his hand. A woman said she had seen two men chasing a third man up an alley near where Orr was found. No arrests were ever made.

Ford Stolen Here During the Night

A Ford coupe belonging to a traveling salesman, was stolen some time during the night from the Highland avenue parking space near the Hotel Dixon, the owner reported to the police this morning. The car was parked at the hotel last evening and the owner discovered the theft about 8 o'clock this morning when he went out to get into the machine.

JURY IS EXCUSED

The jury in the county court was excused this morning to report Tuesday morning, August 10 at 10 o'clock, when the trial of several liquor cases will be started. The docket contains six separate cases of violation of prohibition laws to be tried next week.

MR. COOLIDGE LAUDS STATE SOVEREIGNTY

Tells Colorado State Independence Aids All U. S.

Paul Smith's, N. Y., Aug. 3.—(AP)—The sovereignty of the states which go to make up the nation, was held up as a source of great strength to the Federal government by President Coolidge today in an address by radio to exercises at Denver celebrating the semi-centennial of Colorado's admission to statehood.

Speaking into a telephone at his vacation office, Mr. Coolidge had his words carried by long distance wires to Denver for broadcasting through the ether, the address being the first of any kind he has made since he came to the Adirondacks nearly four weeks ago.

Mr. Coolidge hailed Colorado as a state that "always has been progressive," declared that "she stands out like a beacon in the history of woman suffrage," and praised "the majesty of her scenery" and "the wonderful balm of her climate," yet he asserted her "chief treasure was the principle of local self-government."

"This celebration is exceedingly appropriate at this time," he added. "The nation is inclined to disregard altogether too much both the functions and the duties of the states. They are much more than subdivisions of the Federal government. They are also endowed with sovereignty in their own right. Of course, one of their chief glories, lies in the fact that they are all partakers of the American spirit, all a part of the American nation, but a great deal of the strength of the Federal government lies in the fact that the states have the power to function locally and independently, subject only to the restrictions which they themselves have invoked by adopting the national constitution."

"This fifteenth anniversary is in celebration of that principle. It was fifty years ago that Colorado put off the yoke of a territory almost exclusively under the dominion of the national government and put on the robes of a sovereign American state. The great progress that it has made in these years has been in no small part due to the application of the principle of local self government. Of all the wealth and eminence that this state has achieved, this is its chief treasure. It ought to be maintained undiminished and guarded with jealous care through all the years to come."

The text of the address follows:

"In order to have a complete realization of the genius, the power, and the spirit of our country, it is necessary to study the history of each one of its forty-eight commonwealths. In no way can the seeker of the real glory of our national life be more richly rewarded."

"Today our attention is fixed on Colorado, which is observing the fifteenth anniversary of her entrance into statehood. The whole nation takes great pleasure in having a part in your celebration, for all your sister states are rejoicing in your remarkable accomplishments."

"In your story we find romance, appeal to the imagination, striking exemplification of untiring courage, the pioneer spirit, the adaptability to surroundings and of the ultimate working out of a progressive civilization. Well may the centennial state be proud of her record. Her history is associated with some of the important dates and figures of our nation. The state has brought her semi-centennial and the semi-centennial of the United States—the 150th anniversary of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence."

"It is related that Spanish explorers in the middle of the 16th century first set foot on the soil of what is now Colorado, and that Escalante visited there in 1776. But virtually it remained an unknown area until Lieutenant Zebulon M. Pike, of the United States Army, in 1806, discovered the peak that became his memorial. Ten years later, Major Stephen H. Long, also an army man gave his name to another peak towering into the sky for more than 14,000 feet. Nowhere in the world does scenery surpass that of Colorado. She has a mountainous area six times that of Switzerland. Nature brought her with a lavish hand. Long was followed by Dick Wootan, Jim Barker, Kit Carson, and a long list of fur traders, and by John C. Fremont, whose fifth expedition ended in 1853."

The GOLD RUSH

"In 1858 came the discovery of gold, that precious metal, which from the beginning of time, has been a lure for mankind. George A. Jackson, of Missouri, and J. H. Gregory of Georgia, led the first bands of hardy prospectors to the Cherry Creek and the Platte gold fields. The rush was on. The same pluck and grit, the same ability to overcome every obstacle that led those early settlers to push on under the slogan of 'Pike's Peak or Bust' never has ceased to animate the people of Colorado. Dangers were never more imminent, hardships never more acute. Only the strongest, the bravest, could survive those early days. It was a time that tried souls and bred men."

WHITE JADE.
Little lady, quaintly made
From a moonlit bit of jade,
Was it in the realm of dream,
In some fairy, Lethian stream,
That you plucked that lotus there,
Fretted in your chiseled hair?

White as snowfall falling down
Is the whiteness of your gown.
White as mist from breathless lips
To your taper fingertips.
Not the faintest emerald tint
Here or there. No verdant hint
Mars your purity and grace,
Or the wanness of your face.

With your tiny hands clasped so,
Patient little curio,
You are like a moonbeam strayed
From the lovely land of jade!

Louella Parsons Writes Friend

Louella O. Parsons, the well known movie writer, is enjoying life in California where she expects to remain for the next two months. She has quite recovered her health. At present she is writing from Hollywood for all of the Hearst papers, and her articles are more popular than ever. She writes a full page for Sunday editions and a column every day. Mrs. Parsons is quite enthusiastic about John Barrymore, indeed she says she is "crazy" about him, he is so unspoiled and genuine. John Barrymore's latest picture is "Don Juan," and is opening in New York city on the first night with seats at $11. Mrs. Parsons' daughter Harriet, well known here from visits with N. C. Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY.

BREAKFAST—Chilled cantaloupe, cereal, thin cream, crisp broiled bacon, soft cooked eggs, whole wheat toast, milk coffee.
LUNCHEON—Potato salad, rye bread, fruit jelly with whipped cream, plain cake, milk tea.
DINNER—Planked ham, stuffed baked tomatoes, molded Swiss chard salad, red raspberry shortcake, graham bread, milk coffee.

The tomatoes are stuffed with macaroni and cheese. The macaroni makes it unnecessary to serve another vegetable, which simplifies both the cooking and the dish washing.

This potato salad suggested in the luncheon menu is quite out of the ordinary and is more attractive to serve than the usual variety.

Potato Salad.

Two large potatoes, 1 scant teaspoon mustard, 1½ teaspoons salt, 3 tablespoons olive oil, 1 tablespoon tarragon vinegar, 3 hard cooked eggs, few drops onion juice, 1 tablespoon anchovy sauce, pickled beets.

Wash potatoes and boil until tender. Peel and put through a ricer. Season with mustard and salt. Put eggs through ricer. Add to potatoes and beat in oil, vinegar, onion juice and anchovy sauce. Beat well and let stand until cool. Shape into small balls and chill. Place each ball on a slice of pickled beet and serve on a bed of lettuce with French dressing.

Melted butter can be used in place of oil in the salad. In this event use less salt, 1 teaspoonful will be enough. A mild boiled dressing can be used in place of the French dressing if preferred.

Birthday Surprise Friday Evening

On the evening of Friday, July 30, friends and relatives to the number of seventy, assembled and called at the country home of Herman Albers, west of Dixon, and surprised him, the occasion being his birthday anniversary.

The surprise was well planned by those taking part, the host being made to believe that a few relatives were to spend the evening at his home. After Mr. Albers recovered from his surprise he greeted everyone and made all welcome. Dancing was enjoyed for the rest of the evening, the music which was excellent was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ortengren and E. Henry. Refreshments of sandwiches, cake and ice cream were served. Late in the evening everyone departed for home, wishing the host many happy returns of the day. He was the recipient of a number of gifts.

It is a Treat to Dine at Ciro's

(By Edna Wallace Hopper.)

Paris.—Yesterday I dropped in at Ciro's for lunch. Ciro's famous restaurant is on the Rue Daunou, the most American street of Paris. It is a white-and-gold fronted establishment with a not too imposing entrance, a brightly carpeted lobby and two main dining rooms.

The best time to arrive at this cafe is about one-thirty, or even 2 o'clock is not too late. This is the hour when the restaurant is filling up with the most interesting people. It is always well to reserve a table for this hour as tables are at a premium after one-thirty. The two dining rooms are known as the "big room" and the "little room," and the little room is the preferred place to dine. However, unless you are known, you are likely to get chucked into the big room by the maître d'hôtel. But since society likes to be as crowded as possible, and to go where one sees and is seen, it chooses the little room in which to crowd.

Americans simply devour Ciro's, for you know Americans are never really at home in Paris or elsewhere unless somebody's elbow is jammed into their ribs and the leg of a neighboring chair is entangled with their feet, and all the while smoke from somebody's cigar wafts across their soup.

Today Ciro's is more than a mere restaurant. It is a center of fashionable Parisian life. In fact, Ciro's is a club of unlimited membership but with a cachet all its own. Here society and the stage find a common level.

Society belles mingle with real estate promoters from Florida and college boys from Peoria, Illinois. The broad accent of a southern cotton magnate may be heard in conversation with a flip Parisian mannikin. At one table a Parisian beauty is talking gossip with a Russian grand duke while at the next table is a dyed-in-the-wool conservative woman from New England and her two debutante daughters.

Jewels and fine feathers are on gorgeous display. American buyers are taking notes or making sketches of the styles worn by famous actresses.

The real French beauties are most conscientious regarding their make-up and general style. All during luncheon they are constantly and nervously fingering their vanity cases and about every ten minutes will find them wielding a powder puff or a lipstick. In fact, the French women are even more prone to frankly braid themselves in public, than are the American women. Lips must be flamingly vivid and form a perfect cupid's bow. Eyes are heavily beaded with mascara and the lids delicately shaded with blue or black. Powder is blended carefully and worn freely but rouge is scarcely ever seen. In short, the face of the well-groomed Parisienne resembles a Benda mask giving a vague languid expression.

Much short hair is seen. Very short haired women and long haired men are a usual combination in Ciro's. But one admirable point in favor of the Parisienne is that she is so delightfully slim. The sylph-like, willowy type is just as prevalent in Paris. Contrary to American women the French keep themselves fit by exercise and careful diet.

WANT STUDENT NURSES IN THE HOSPITAL HERE

Enrollment of Nurses For Fall Class Under Way Now

Enrollment for nurses for the fall class at the Dixon Public Hospital is being taken now. Nursing offers unusual opportunities for young ladies. The Katherine Shaw Bethea Training school for nurses has fourteen young women in training under the superintendency of Mabel A. Young, R. N., a graduate of the University Hospital, Ann Arbor, Mich. The local school is accredited by the State Board of Registration and is affiliated with the Michael Reese Hospital, Chicago. The superintendent is assisted by a very capable staff of four graduate nurses and dietitians.

The staff has charge of, and is responsible for the organization and administration of the various services connected with the care of the sick in the most efficient and economical manner possible. The able support and encouragement, the time spent, and the thorough and careful outline

DOLLAR CORN.

The farmer, whose idea of economic bliss used to be "dollar wheat," has recently hoped for dollar corn. Which is a not unreasonable hope. Gauged by expenses and general prices, perhaps corn ought to be worth that much.

The International Harvester Co. agreed with the farmer, and backed its belief with action probably unprecedented in the history of any "trust." It took corn in payment for farm machinery at the rate of a dollar a bushel, in expectation that the grain, though low at the time, would rise to about that level. Its corn receipts in the last few months, on that basis, have been enormous.

Corn, however, has gone down instead of up, and unless the tide turns the Harvester company stands to lose a big sum of money.

This suggests that even a modern American "trust" is not omnipotent in the realm of economics. Many farmers, however, still believe that the government can make what prices it will for commodities. As a matter of fact, the good old, bad old law of economics seems to remain superior to all artificial agencies, and always has its way in the end.

PRISON SHEETS.

Nearly 300 inmates of Kansas state prison at Lansing wanted sheets on their bunks. When a moderate disturbance failed to bring the boon demanded, they shut themselves in the mine where they work, along with their guards, refusing to let anybody in or out until the sheets were promised.

After thirty-six hours in the mine, they gave up and were willing to come out and sleep on sheetless bunks as usual.

Such mutinies are not to be encouraged. And sheets for convicts may be a bit extreme—a part of the "coddling" alleged to be all too frequent in this tolerant land. Yet there is another side to it.

By all accounts, penitentiary bunks, at best, are none too clean or comfortable. Time was when no convict would have expected anything better. But when convicts do insist on sheets, that may be an indication of civilized possibilities unsuspected among the prison population.

Sheets, large, clean and frequently changed, might have a wholesome effect on the prisoners, aside from giving them better sleep. The moral influence of a decent bed has never been adequately sung. It might be worth trying, if prison authorities are interested in the reformatory side of prison life.

LIGHTNING RODS.

The vast series of explosions and fires that destroyed the navy arsenal at Lake Denmark, N. J., was caused by a stroke of lightning. Charge $100,000,000 loss to that bolt.

There do not seem to have been any lightning rods on the buildings containing those perilous explosives.

A few weeks ago there was $10,000,000 worth of petroleum burned up at Los Angeles, set on fire likewise by lightning. There were no lightning rods on those tanks.

These two conflagrations, coming in quick succession, with several minor ones between, call attention to the strange neglect of simple, old-fashioned precautions against lightning.

Was Benjamin Franklin wrong about it? Will the lightning rod not protect a building, as it has been supposed to do for a century and a half, by conducting electric energy harmlessly from the air to the ground instead of letting it jump the gap from cloud to building in a big, devastating spark?

If there is any scientific argument against the lightning rod on principle, the public is not aware of it. The device has been discredited to some extent by the fake "lightning rod agents" of the last generation; but presumably a good lightning rod, while not a sure protection against electric storms, is the best protection yet known. If so, why not use them more generally on structures particularly exposed or containing particularly inflammable or explosive stuff?

If this isn't hot enough for you, you know where you can go.

A STORY OF A GIRL OF TODAY

"What more than a man like Jerry was needed to make one a happy wife?"

"What a little twist was there in my own brain that made me hesitate? Was it because I had been so unfortunate as not to find anyone who after ten years of married life seemed very happy?"

The first memories of my mother were of seeing her gentle eyes misted with tears. She had been nagged all her life by my father, and yet he was what the world called a good husband. He provided for her bountifully. He was always with her—more is the pity—for he never allowed her to have an idea of her own. She was as much his chattel as though he had bought and paid for her.

This seemed to be the status of all the husbands and wives in that little country town from which I had come. The women were comparatively busy and possibly contented in caring for their children, and that was all.

Since I had come to the city I had seen an entirely different kind of life—a kind of life I had read about and seen upon the screen. But these people were not any happier. There was Robert Tremaine. He had not been happy with his wife long before he knew Mamie. And yet she had told me that when they were married, Bobby Tremaine was crazy about his wife. What had made them apart? What was this terrible thing that came between always?

In the lives of all my acquaintances, rich and poor, there was some-hitch somewhere which made life and love a very different proposition from the life I had dreamed.

As if to further mix up my problem, I met Jerry as I left the apartment house.

"How did you know I was here?" I asked.

"I saw Mamie on the street," he answered promptly, "after you ran away from me this morning and she told me that. I would probably find you at The Circle. I went there, and after describing Joan and you to Jim Smith, he said that you probably were over here."

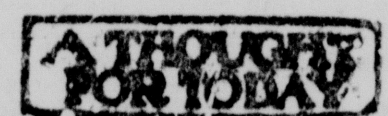

"It's a queer place for you to be, Judy," he said looking around. "I don't like you to go to such places without some man with you."

Immediately the old fighting spirit rose in me. Here was Jerry finding fault with me for doing something that I knew nothing about. Just when I had softened toward him, just when I had made up my mind that perhaps the safety of Jerry's home was best for me, I knew that I could not accept it.

Furtively, I looked up into his face and saw his mouth had settled into decisive lines. I knew he was thinking that he knew what was best for me—perhaps he did, but I also knew that I did not love Jerry Hathaway well enough to let him decide my life for me. I must still go on my own way.

MOUNDS NEAR E. ST. LOUIS WORK OF MAN'S LABOR

Such is Decision of Expert Geologists After Investigation

Springfield, Ill., (AP)—After years of investigation and excavation, geologists have unanimously decided that Cahokia Mounds near East St. Louis, are the product of man, and not of erosion.

Dr. A. H. Crock, director of the Illinois state Museum, here, traced the changing scientific opinion regarding them.

"The Cahokia Mounds for many years," he said, "were thought to be remnants of an alluvial terrace which had been mostly removed by erosion, the careful scrutiny of the excavations, supplemented by auger borings makes it clear that the mounds are artificial."

"As early as 1866, Professor A. H. Worthen, director of the Geological Survey of Illinois, considered the mounds 'proof' that the Mississippi Valley had been filled to a height of 50 or 60 feet above its present level and that this was in part removed by subsequent erosion during the period of elevation and drainage that succeeded the glacial drift. Later Professor Worthen said the mounds were 'simply outlines of drift, that had remained as originally deposited, while the surrounding contemporaneous strata are swept away by denuding forces.'"

"The number, general contour and location of the mounds are such as to suggest a natural origin. But the internal structure does not seem to support this idea. New light was shed upon this interesting question by Professor Warren K. Moorehead, who secured specimens for the State and University of Illinois museums."

"As a result of his excavations more is known of the mounds than ever before. Upon first sight they appear to be stratified but closer examination reveals that the different layers are usually composite in character. When the trenches were dug there were a number of different deposits which were not in their natural places. For instance, if these materials had been laid in water, leached soil would not have mixed with un-leached, as it was; clay masses would not be scattered through sandy loam; pieces of flint, pottery, shells, bone and charcoal would not be found in all parts of the mass without regard to their specific gravity. The charcoal would come in the top layers; the flint, rock fragments and pottery in the bottom; and the bones and shells between."

"The fact that there were layers, which were not the usual natural growth was proven by Moorehead and Dr. M. H. Leighton, University of Illinois, who pointed out that the fact that the builders piled up the earth several feet and then used the mound for a number of seasons. Thus vegetation had an opportunity to take root, grow and form a soil layer rich in carbon."

"In Asia Minor and Egypt, people had a similar habit. When one house fell and was buried by its own roof, often built on the ruins. As a result, whole towns arose on the ruins of previous towns and excavations show half a dozen layers built on the old layer."

BLUE MONDAY IS BAD OMEN FOR N. Y. YANKS' LUCK

Faber Halts Winning Streak of Eleven Straight Games

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
It was a blue Monday for the league-leading New York Yanks for they were victims of an interurban clash between Faber of the Chicago White Sox and Shocker of New York, which halted their winning streak of 11 straight games.

The score was 2-1, Faber permitting only 6 safeties. The other Urban did about as well, granting 6 in 7 games.

Ossie Bluego, seldom found among the long distance hitters, drove out a homer in the 4th with two on base to record a victory for Washington over St. Louis in a suggest 14-10.

Pittsburg accepted a beating from Philadelphia 8-3, while Cincinnati was idle, the Pirates thereby retaining a lead of one and one-half games. Chicago brought the Brooklyn Dodgers back to a tie for 4th place by downing them 5-4.

The New York Giants with a four to two margin, won from the Cardinals. Tyson, outfielder from Louisville, now with the Giants was hit by a Vic Keen slant in the 6th and went down but was revived and later delivered the winning hit and made a double play unassisted.

Manager McGraw of the Giants announced he had signed Joe Morrissey, outfielder from Holy Cross and that John Boyle Xavier College catcher, had been released.

Defeat of Veteran Tennis Players Is Tough on the Team

Seabright, N. J., Aug. 3.—(AP)—An atmosphere of doubt gathered over selection of America's defending Davis cup tennis team today in the wake of stunning defeats administered to William T. Tilden, national champion and R. Norris Williams, veteran internationalist, on successive days.

The downfall of Williams yesterday in the first round of the annual Seabright invitation tournament was even more unexpected than the defeat of Tilden Sunday by Vincent Richards in the Metropolitan championship finals. Williams was beaten by Lionel Oden of Stamford, who hitherto had done little to gain recognition, by scores of 6-4, 6-5, 10-8.

Helen Wills overwhelmed the Seabright champion, Mrs. Mowland Davis 6-1, 6-0 indicating complete recovery from her operation for appendicitis in Europe two months ago. Elizabeth Ryan, Mrs. Molla Mallory, Eleanor Goss and Martha Bayard also advanced by easy victories.

The Cubs broke their losing streak, but it was not until the 9th inning that they were able to nose out the Robins.

Charley Grimm, first baseman of the Cubs had a cinder removed from his eye and he will be out of the game for a few days. The initial sack will be guarded by Charles Tolson who has been playing the role of successful pinch hitter.

Hack Wilson of the Cubs is giving Jimmy Bottomley of the Cardinals a hot race for the home run honors of the National League. Jim took the lead by bagging a circuit blow Sunday and Hack came right back yesterday, and clouted one, putting the pair in a 15-15 deadlock.

Bob O'Farrell's home run with a man on base put the Cardinals out in front of the Giants, but Keen and Sherdel were unable to hold the advantage. Bill Southworth, a former Giant, contributed two errors which were helpful to his former mates.

State Employment Agency Accomplished Much Good

Springfield, Ill., —(AP)—More than 133,000 persons were supplied positions through the free employment service of the state during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1926.

There were more than 236,000 registrations during the year, of people requesting positions, while employers sent in requests for nearly 155,000. The Chicago offices placed approximately 442 per cent of the applicants.

By cities, the Rockford office placed more than 13,000 workers, and the office at Aurora nearly 10,000. Peoria and East St. Louis offices each found employment for more than 5,000. Bloomington received 7,133 requests for help and found work for 7,067.

"Illinois at the present time," the report said, "ranks among the foremost states in regard to its free employment service."

State Laws on Women's Work are "Dead Letters"

Springfield, Ill., August 2.—(AP)—Statutes of the state governing the number of hours which women may work come under the classification of "dead letters," a report just issued by the Department of Labor shows.

Beginning in 1911, a maximum of ten hours' work daily was decreed by Illinois laws. Investigations made by the Department of Labor since that time show that, independent of state government action, the average working day has been reduced to less than nine hours for all industries.

Out of forty-one thousand investigations made by the department for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1925, only 524 violations of statutes were found; of these, only twenty were for too many hours. The remaining violations were for failure to maintain time records required by the state.

Exhibitors' Space at State Fair All Taken

Springfield, Ill., —(AP)—Exhibitors' reservations have now taken up every available inch of space in the exposition and machinery buildings of the State Fair grounds here in preparation for the state fair August 21-28, W. W. Lindley, manager of the fair, said today.

A few acres are still left on the machinery field, but these are being rapidly taken. When exhausted, no further exhibition space will be available for these departments.

Two unusual exhibits have been scheduled. Leading representatives of the osteopaths of the state will conduct a clinic on the grounds, hoping to show visitors their method of healing.

From the oil fields of Southern Illinois comes a model oil field, which will be shown in operation, with the steps in refinement of petroleum illustrated. With this, will be a hard road scene, with a miniature filling station, and a farm homestead.

"Don Juan," screen play by Bess Meredyth, starring John Barrymore, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
"The greatest lover in the world," men called Don Juan, and women women admiringly; all wondering why he was so cruel and indifferent to women, had no faith in them, and never gave his heart in return for the ones bestowed so recklessly upon him. But Don Juan, as cynical as handsome, had looked in his secret heart a bitter memory of when as a child, he had witnessed his beautiful mother's shameless passage from the arms of her husband, Don Jose, as he left for the wars, into the arms of her lover, Leandro, who entered as Don Jose left. Don Jose had returned and trapped them.

CHAPTER I—Continued
Practically she had run back into the room, and stared about it, seeking some hiding place for Leandro. Two of the huge stones of which the wall was made had become dislodged, and were on the floor. Little Juan watched, bewildered, as she motioned Leandro to hide in the space they had occupied. The door opened, slowly. Beatriz watched it, even her small son had known her terror, so that now he could realize it as he had then. She went to him, put her hands on his shoulders, fattered about him like a snared bird. And he stood looking at her, making no move to return her caresses. "Why have you come back?" she asked, over and over, and at last he told her. "I have turned back for certain evidence of an important nature," he said, and his voice dragged as his feet had dragged on the stairs. He put her from him and went to the bedroom, pushing aside the curtains slowly, because he knew she faced the stern face of her husband.

Don Jose stood for a moment, silently facing his wife.

that no one hidden there could escape him. Beatriz waited, frantic with fear, to glance toward her lover's hiding place. Juan could imagine how she had stood clutching the curtains while his father searched the room, and how she had followed him when he came back to the circular room again. Juan could understand when, later, Don Jose had told of the relief of that moment, when he thought that his search was ended in failure. He had said that he must go, had bent to kiss his wife once more. He had gone to the door, and she had followed him; hating more than ever to leave her, adoring her as she stood there with half the beauty of her body bare, he had bent his head for a last kiss.

It was then that he saw the opening in the wall, which he had ignored. Her eyes had followed him to it, and in her terror he read her secret.

He had walked toward it; the little boy on the hearth had watched him, wondering. Don Jose had stopped before he reached the wall, looked down at Beatriz' hand trembling on his arm, at the pallor of her face.

"This wall has gone too long unnamed," he had said. "It means danger for all."

Striding to the door, he had thrown it wide, revealing the hunchback waiting there. An order was given briefly. Cowering against the wall, Beatriz had watched her husband turning again to face her; she had not moved or spoken when the hunchback returned with four men, who crossed the room and lifted the great stones, one after the other, into place in the wall. Once she had leaned forward, her clenched hands uplifted in protest, and Don Jose had signalled the men to wait a moment, while he asked her if she knew of any reason why the stones should not be sealed in place.

For an instant she had hesitated. Juan could imagine what her thoughts had been, how keenly she must have realized that her lover was cowering in that hidden recess, facing his doom, how her love for the man must have surged up in her heart, and then ebbcd she faced the stern face of her husband. She had said at last that she knew no reason, and Don Jose ordered the work to go on. Before her eyes her lover had been committed to a hideous death, and she had said no word to prevent it. Their work finished, the four men had gone, and Don Jose turned contemptuously to his wife. Years afterward, he told Juan of the faint sound of a man's fists beating frantically on an unyielding stone, and of how it had died away, while the woman covered against the embroidered curtains of the bedroom where she had betrayed her husband's love.

Then, suddenly, she had flown across the room and torn at the wall with her hands, had turned and thrown herself on her knees before Don Jose, crying "Let him out! Let him out!" And he had stood there laughing at her agony, hating her, motionless until she caught at him with her hands. Then he had thrown her aside, loathing her touch.

And as she shrank back from him, then ran to seize him again, he had turned to the door. "Out—before I kill you!" he had cried, and with the glory of her red-gold hair tumbling over her bare shoulders she had gone stumbling down the stairs, out of the lives of her son and her husband.

Behind her she left a man who could never again love a woman, and a little boy, who, believing all women to be as faithless as she had been, was to grow into Don Juan, "the greatest lover in the world."

Don Jose, feeding his own bitterness through the years by one orgy after another, did not foresee that result. It amused the man to have beautiful women about him, to enertain them lavishly, and treat them as badly as he would have liked to treat his wife. Night after night he sauntered into the banquet hall of the old castle, his son at his side, and listened absently while the loveliest women in all Spain did their best to captivate him.

Juan was a boy of fifteen when the last of these banquets was given. That night took its place in his memory with the one on which Leandro was sealed in the wall of the tower room. The banquet had been spread, the guests were waiting, as Juan and Don Jose entered the hall. Even after Juan remembered little details, as if he had known how significant that evening was to be when he stood between the great curtains of the doorway.

He could recall the color of the scene, the gown of Venetian yellow that one girl wore, the gaudy plumage of a cockatoo that perched on the hunchback's hand, a strain of seductive music and the lovely line of a girl's body as she danced to it.

He could remember the face of a girl who had bent to kiss him, and the way he had avoided her, as well as his own contempt of her. His father commented amusingly on the incident; Juan replied "Passing fair, but a trifle thin of shoulder," and had been rather proud of the remark.

He could not recall the blonde woman whose role was of supreme importance, however. Afterward the hunchback told him that she had stood behind Don Jose when he seated himself, that she had laid one hand lightly on the man's shoulder, and that Don Jose had turned to look at her, smiled maliciously as he saw the worship in her eyes, and turned away.

He had laughed, the hunchback said, and called to him the girl who had tried unsuccessfully to kiss Juan. When she came running to him, he had put his arm around her, drawn her close to him, and laughed tauntingly at the woman who stood behind him.

Then, suddenly, steel had gleamed and flashed in the torchlight. The woman had drawn a dagger and driven it into Don Jose's side. (To be continued.)

MAKE ROBBERY ARRESTS
East St. Louis, Ill.—(AP)—Four men and a woman were held here yesterday in connection with the holdup of an East St. Louis and Suburban Railway pay car last July 19 when $8,100 was stolen by six men. Police said one of these arrested had signed a confession that he got information about the money shipment from a railway employee and turned it over to the others.

ONE THIRD LAND WASTE
Chicago, Aug. 2—(AP)—Practically one third of the farm area of Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, North Dakota, Wisconsin and Minnesota produces no tangible income, E. E. Kennedy of Chicago, told the Agricultural Club here today. Kennedy, who is secretary of the Illinois Farmers' Union, said this area represents the farm land occupied by buildings, roads, pasture and waste lands.

Just received a new supply of white paper for the picnic supper table. It is nicely done up in rolls. Price 10c to 50c. B. F. Shaw Printing Co.

LADY ASTOR HERE TO HAVE CHILDREN INSPECT AMERICA

Says Most Britains Are Ashamed of Attacks on United States

Boston, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Lady Astor, first woman member of the British parliament arrived in Boston on steamship Samaria today with the announced intention of showing America to her four children who accompanied her. An older son, she said, was with Viscount Astor in California and would join them later while her eldest son is now doing military duty and could not leave England.

Lady Astor made a few comments on the war debts and world peace.

"Of course, debts of any kind never make for good will," she said, "and particularly when they are war debts. England had made up her mind to pay and she will pay."

Ashamed of Attacks "Several members of parliament with whom I discussed the recent attacks on the American attitude as started a fortnight ago by the Daily Mail expressed themselves as thoroughly ashamed of such condemnation."

She refused to take peace societies seriously. "You have more of them in America than in any other country. But peace cannot be obtained in that way. You must look for the economic causes and for the causes of ill will."

"I am in favor of peace societies and peace parades to the extent that the more people talk about peace, the better it is. But I don't believe they should be taken seriously."

Mad Dog's Bite is Fatal to Cattle

Centerville, Ills., Aug. 2.—(AP)—Three head of cattle are dead today in the vicinity of Walnut Hill, seven miles southeast of here, following attacks about three weeks ago by a dog which is said to have been suffering from hydrophobia. The dog disappeared and has not been heard from. Yesterday the cattle which had been bitten by the dog developed fits and two of them were shot, the other one dying in the meantime.

The VANITY CASE

by CAROLYN WELLS ©1926 by G. P. PUTNAM SONS

BEGIN HERE TODAY

In Harbor Gardens, Long Island, in an elaborate bungalow, lived PERRY HEATH and his wife, MYRA. They were entertaining as house guests:

LAWRENCE INMAN, a distant relative of Myra's, and aside from Perry, her only heir, and BUNNY MOORE, young, gold-en-haired, vivacious, an old friend of Myra's.

Myra Heath was beautiful but cold. She never used rouge, never wore colors. She collected rare bits of glass and her latest was a whisky bottle, which aroused her artist husband's scorn.

Provoked at a growing intimacy between Perry and Bunny, Myra announces she has made her will in favor of Inman, cutting her husband off. That night she quarrels with Perry and alludes mysteriously to his "secret."

Discovering Myra alone with Inman late that night, Perry orders Inman out of the house by morning, but the next day finds Perry Heath gone and his wife's body stretched on the studio floor with candles burning at her head and feet. She is made up with rouge; she is dressed in gay colors. Near her is a card marked, "The Work of Perry Heath."

She has been killed by a blow with her cherished whisky bottle. When the coroner comes Inman and Bunny are strangely nervous when made to answer questions. Meanwhile, at the County Club the murder is the topic of conversation among SAM ANDERSON, WALLACE FORBES, AL CUNNINGHAM and others. MRS. PRITCHETT, towing her nephew, TUDORHURST BUCK, goes over to the Heaths and invites Bunny to stay at her house next door. Bunny breaks out crying and Buck, at sight of her beauty, is her slave.

To Wallace Forbes, Mrs. Pritchett relates having seen, the night before, strange lights mysteriously appearing and disappearing in the Heath home.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XI

THAT afternoon at two o'clock, the lounge at the Heath home looked a more fitting place for a social reception than for a coroner's inquest.

The big room with its windows open front and back, showed window boxes of bright colored flowers, over which the thin sash curtains swayed in the breeze, and the sunlight played through their fluttering folds.

On the tables were vases and baskets of flowers arranged with the care and taste that was the resulting routine of Myra's instructions.

The easy chairs and davenport showed their summer garb of flowered English chintz, and small light chairs had been brought from the caterer's for the audience that was expected.

Many people came, both from the Park and from the Gardens, for the Heaths had numerous friends, and there was the usual quota of curiosity seekers.

Coroner Osborn sat at a table, his canny, dark eyes darting about the room, and his small features twisted into a thoughtful frown, as he realized the magnitude of the task before him.

But he was a man of efficient habits, and on the stroke of two he called his first witness.

This was Katie, the parlor maid, who had first discovered Myra's body.

She took the chair indicated, and faced the coroner with composure.

But Osborn had no suspicion that the girl was in any way implicated in the crime, and he merely asked a few definite and direct questions as to her movements that morning and her actions on making the discovery of the tragedy in the studio.

He had heard her story before, but had it repeated for the benefit of the men who were serving as jurors.

Again Katie hesitated when asked at what time she had returned to the house the night before.

Coroner Osborn pressed the point. "At what hour are you supposed to come home, when you have your evening out?" he asked her.

"At eleven o'clock," she replied, with apparent reluctance.

"That seems to be a bit late, but no matter. What time was it when you really returned?"

"I don't know, sir."

"What set you out? I don't suppose you carry a latch-key?"

"No, sir. I—I just got in—myself."

The coroner turned to Herrick. "At what time did you lock up the house?" he asked.

"At something after eleven-thirty," the man spoke sulkily, for he could see that this must impair Katie's story, and the servants were, for the most part, loyal to one another.

"You locked the back door—the kitchen entrance as well as the front door and windows?"

"Yes, sir," Herrick could see no way to evade the truth.

"Then how did Katie get in?" the inexorable voice continued.

There was a moment's silence, and then Emma, the waitress, spoke up and said: "I let her in."

"Ah, now we are getting facts. How did you know when she came? Did you sit up for her? Did she knock? Tell the truth, now."

But Emma was a straightforward person, and she said, simply, "Why, Katie threw a package up at my bedroom window, and I came down and unlocked the kitchen door for her. I often do that."

"Oh, you do! And you bolted it again, after her?"

"Yes, sir."

"And what time of night was this?"

Emma gave a scared glance at Katie, but she had a supreme respect for the majesty of the law, and she replied:

"Well, it was just half past one, sir. I saw the clock in the pantry as I went through."

"A fine time of night for a young woman to be getting home!" exclaimed the coroner, but, remembering that the decorations of the Heaths' servants were not his immediate concern, he went on with his inquiries.

"Did you, Emma, see anything unusual about the house at that time?"

"No, sir, but I wasn't in this part of the house. The maids' rooms are in an ell at the back."

"I see, and you went straight back to your room?"

"Yes, sir, as soon as I had locked the door after Katie."

"Very well, and Katie, what did you do, on your return?"

"I stayed downstairs a moment, or two, and then I went to my room."

"What did you stay down for?"

"I went to the icebox, to get something to eat."

Katie blushed a little, but spoke candidly.

"Katie's always eating," Herrick murmured, with a tolerant smile.

"And then you went up to bed?"

"Yes, sir, I did."

"And saw nothing unusual, nor anybody about?"

Katie hesitated for a bit, and then, suddenly jerking up her head, she said, "No, sir," in a loud, clear voice.

"You are sure?" the coroner urged, for he had a feeling she was not telling the truth.

AMUSEMENTS

"THE GREAT GATSBY"

KEOPENS STUDEBAKER

The new season was officially opened at the Studebaker Theater on last Sunday night when William A. Brady presented "The Great Gatsby," with James Rennie in the title role. For a run of four (4) weeks "The Great Gatsby" is the highly praised dramatization by Owen Davis of F. Scott Fitzgerald's popular novel of the same name.

Mr. Brady obtains first place in the list of Chicago's new plays by opening this drama on the first day of the new theatrical year, August 1, for which he has brought, intact, the entire cast of over 40 players, direct from the Ambassador Theater, New York, where "The Great Gatsby" enjoyed a run of over 6 months.

The question as to whether the stage version is a faithful adaptation of the book, since so many plays made from novels are not, has already been eloquently answered by the New York critics who were unanimous in stating that in "The Great Gatsby," Owen Davis, the most prolific writer for the stage in America, had done one of the finest pieces of work in his entire career. The story remains practically unchanged with the exception of one or two slight variations made necessary for dramatic unity. Otherwise Davis has followed so well the text of Fitzgerald's tale that the play contains even the exotic atmosphere created by Fitzgerald in painting his realistic picture of a phase of modern, high powered, Long Island society life.

"The Great Gatsby," starring James Rennie, is looked upon as a happy choice for a vehicle wherewith to start the new season on Sunday night. Matinees will be given on Wednesdays and Saturdays. The following scale of prices will prevail during the entire engagement. Nights Monday to Friday $1.00 to $2.50, Saturday and Sunday night $1.00 to $3.00, Wednesday Matinee $1.00 to $2.00, Saturday Matinee $1.00 to $2.50 plus tax. You can order your seats by mail now.
